

810 Human social interaction has been altered by online communication, redefining socialization as enjoying company, sharing, and working together. In contrast, online socialization is limited to the virtual world and may not fully replicate real-world interactions, with a negative impact on children's maturity due to the lack of correction and guidance.