

The planet may not follow the group because it is a far away, and the force of the attraction of the sun will be less further away. It is from the body. However, if the force of the sun is greater, then it will more likely follow the group for example electrons in an atom the stronger it is a nuclear the greater the number of electron is.