

At that time, I wished I had the required academic level and sufficient experience to work in a national or international organization in the public sector that deals with international social challenges. Therefore, my goal is to acquire the necessary knowledge and expertise in this field to fulfill my desire to understand and analyze complex social challenges, and to develop effective programs and policies for positive social change. I want to have a say in this matter. I am enthusiastic about studying this specialization because effective administration can play a crucial role in solving international social challenges. Given the diversity of your program, it would enable me to take courses in public policy and political science. This has further intensified my interest because I usually attend seminars on public policy in my country and contribute my perspectives. I also believe that studying in an international environment and in the English language is a valuable opportunity for learning and personal growth. Through interacting with my international peers and teachers, I will be exposed to diverse and different perspectives, which will broaden my horizons.
