

Christie Sides Hinted At Significant Indiana Fever Roster Change. On Tuesday, July 2, at 9:30 p.m. ET, Caitlin Clark and the Indiana Fever will battle A'ja Wilson and the Las Vegas Aces. Against the Phoenix Mercury on Sunday, she played five key minutes and helped ignite a 14–8 Fever run. During Tuesday's media availability, Sides addressed the lineup change rumors, saying they are trying out new things. The available information suggested that Indiana head coach Christie Sides may be considering changing the team's lineup for their upcoming game against the Aces. Wallace, a 5-foot–11 guard from Baylor, has started in 19 of the Fever's 20 games this season. Further evidence of a starting lineup change surfaced when a video of Katie Lou Samuelson wearing the blue starter jersey and practicing with the first team was posted on social media. "We're just trying out some different things," Sides said (via IndyStar Sports writer Chloe Peterson). Will we see Samuelson replace Wallace in the starting lineup on Tuesday night? It was noticeable that Kristy Wallace, the starting guard for the Fever, was not wearing the starter jersey during the practice. In 20.6 minutes per game, Wallace has averaged 5.4 points, 2.2 rebounds, and 2.2 assists.
