

These studies are also prone to certain biases. Hence, in a cross-sectional survey, we may find that overweight/obese individuals are also more likely to eat salads and exercise more. We assess their dietary habits, exercise habits, and body mass index at one point of time in a cross-sectional survey.