

Explain the design of the system ?–The majority of customers choose websites that are well–designed, appealing, and attractive without losing website functionality. A certain percentage discount should be offered on the website for large orders since this will draw in a larger consumer base.– For better visibility, the images should also be enlarged, as well as the fonts. Although the website is visually nice, more functionality should be added, possibly including. Although there are payment choices, they are not properly constructed to allow customers to choose and finish their transactions. Information provided

?System Functionality ?