

Organizations use emails as a basic business communication model because of their effectiveness – with just one click of a mouse, simple messages can be sent to the entire workforce, saving company time and money.