

On my first day at the university, when I was heading to class, I was excited on my way. I came across a person. I asked him for some help, which was to guide me to the class, and he told me to follow him.