

Early nutrition profoundly impacts infant growth and lifelong health. Breastfeeding promotes healthier weight and height, lowers obesity risk, and minimizes developmental delays, unlike formula feeding, which often results in rapid weight gain and less balanced growth. Therefore, infant feeding choices significantly affect height and weight development.