

At the end of the novel, he arrived in the city of Paris, where the Danglers, Fernand, and Villefort reside, as each of them was rich and successful in his life, married and had children, and that Fernand married Mercedes, and when Edmond appeared as the Count, he was for them a mysterious, civilized, wise, sophisticated and educated person. Which made everyone want to befriend him, and from here he began implementing the complex plan of revenge, as it was implemented in and around Paris, until he reached the gradual ruin of the lives of both of them.