

Caitlin Clark's incredible performance vs Washington Mystics leaves fans going crazy for her. Caitlin Clark appears to finally be finding her feet in professional basketball as she dropped 30 points on the Washington Mystics in the Indiana Fever's latest win, leaving fans going crazy for the overall first pick's performance on June 7. The Fever won a slender 85–83 game against a victory–less Mystics side at the Capital One Arena in D.C, meaning that Clark's impressive points haul was undeniably the catalyst for the triumph as she posted 30 points, eight rebounds and six assists. For perspective, only Kelsey Mitchell could only hit 16 points for the Fever whilst the next closest shooter in the entire game was Stefanie Dolson with 19 showing just how far above the rest she was when it came to sinking shots on Friday night. Fans are stunned by Clark's form. According to StatMamba, Clark became the first player ever to score those numbers plus seven three–pointers made and four steals. Whilst her team are second–last, they're 2.5 games behind Angel Reese's Chicago Sky and in the overall League, have moved within half a game back to the Los Angeles Sparks.
