

the ratio of the magnitude of the charge on either conductor to the magnitude of the potential difference between the conductors