

Creating a positive work environment is crucial to employee happiness and satisfaction. When communication channels are ineffective or employees feel their voices are not heard, it can lead to frustration.