

Type I collagen makes up about 90 percent of the collagen in your body. Almost every tissue of your body contains Type I collagen, including tendons, skin, bones, cartilage, and connective tissues. Densely packed fibers wound into a triple-helix structure comprise this type.