

A few years back my friends son and nephew had it planned to rob the bank in the little city we live in. They got up early that morning got their ski masks, gloves and a bag for all that cash they had planned to take. They decided it best to use CO2 pistols not real guns. They felt very confident because they had planned this for weeks. Upon arriving at the bank it was empty not one car in the parking lot, no one at the drive thru either. They didnt think of the fact that particular bank was closed on Wednesdays but do they go home? No they proceed across the street and robbed the subway restaurant which eliminated the need for the bags because they didn't really keep a lot of cash on hand. They scared the lady running the register to death because she didn't know it was a CO2 pistol and not a real gun so they gave her $20 back out of the money they just took. Even though they wore masks it was easy to identify the driver because across his back wind shield it says Ray –n– Amanda. They went to prison for this and really didn't benefit at all from the whole ordeal. Because of the CO2 pistol they were charged with armed robbery.
