

It is the main partner of the Egyptian government in sexual and reproductive health, providing family planning services through other voluntary organizations that coordinate. In addition, EFPA is the main partner in the National Population Commission's Lalgariya initiative to increase contraceptive prevalence across the country, and it runs an extensive and sophisticated network of clinics and outreach projects.