Abstract The purpose of the study was to evaluate the sensory skills among students with visual impairment (SVI). The sample contained of 30 students with blind and low vision enrolled in mainstream programs at general education schools at Najran in Kingdom of Saudi Arabia. The results showed that the degree of possessing sensory skills of visually impaired students was moderate. Keywords: blind; low vision; sensory skills