Because PHP is an open-source, server-side scripting language that handles user input, database interactions, and session management, it is a primary target for attackers.

Summarized by © lakhasly.com