

How does a factory town begin? Later, the first real shops appear and the same businessmen give up their stalls very successful and the literacy rate is over 90 per cent. The new factory towns of China have grown opportunities has created an extremely motivated There's a When the town starts to grow, the cellphone workers so that they can phone the families they left behind in their villages. population will be 60 per cent by 2030.