A feasibility study is a tool used during a business development process to show how a business would operate under a set of assumptions.

Summarized by © lakhasly.com