

Ribosomal skipping occurs while the ribosome is translating a viral mRNA. Having not encountered a stop codon, however, the ribosome continues translating the remainder of the viral mRNA.