

In February 2008 Virgin Atlantic became the first airline to fly a plane fuelled partly by 15 biofuel. It used a mixture of 80% conventional jet fuel and 20% biofuel. It carried pilots and technicians, but no passengers.