

To adequately manage its store-level inventory, Starbucks draws on the EOQ system and the P-system. The company's operations strategies are aimed at providing customers with customized products in an efficient and effective way. The schemes aid Starbucks in curtailing stock declines and redundant ravage. P-system is used in the retail stores.