

Like other dromedary camels, Saudi Arabian camels are herbivores with a diet consisting mainly of desert vegetation. Their ability to survive on sparse and dry fodder is a key adaptation to their arid habitat.