

The link between what a teacher wants students to learn and students' actual learning is called instruction, or pedagogy. Rather, effective instruction demands the use of many strategies