

An attractive headline indicated that Apple's performance in 2015 was the most successful as it made $234 billion in its annual sales (see Appendix). However, the successful sales and market dominance of Apple during that time was largely contributed by the iPhone products, rather than the primary product focus of this case study--the Apple Watch.