

Physico-chemical studies of milk Reductase test. The more microorganisms in milk, the faster the bleaching occurs, therefore, the rate of bleaching of methylene blue is an indirect indicator of the degree of contamination of milk. The reductase test results are indicative and cannot replace bacteriological analysis.