

One outcome of industrial revolution was the rise of middle class. Therefore, the additional newly attained middle class status, this group of people started behaving like the traditional landed gentry demanding books to read. The growth in industries brought about unprecedented corresponding growth with trade and commerce.