

The gas enters the compressor at 200 psi and 110 C, and is to be compressed to 1000 psi. Other points to be addressed at the analysis stage are the number of pumps required, and whether interstage cooling is required between the pumps.