

To determine the solubility limits in a ternary system, where one of which is completely miscible (ethanol) and the other is partly miscible with water (ester)