

George Bernard Shaw in his play "Arms and the man". He tries to convey for us the great variety of love between many characters such as love between Sergius and Raina. This kind of love at the beginning of the play was spiritual type when Raina thought that the only daughter of a noble family and she is young, dreamy and beautiful girl loved the Major Bluntschli who is the officer and tall, handsome and good looking. At the beginning she loved him very much and sometimes describes herself as worship of his soul, but after the war Cheveley's victory to Bulgaria and when he met with other man who is pragmatic "Bluntschli" she changed his mood, the loyalty that was in her heart to his fiancé Sergius is changed. The spiritual love gradually changed to physical love.