

Microwave transmission, which involves the use of microwave frequencies for communication, was developed through the work of several scientists.