In every corner of the house there is a story, memories and many desires, because it is a repository of secrets and meetings, and it is the place of the family and loved ones, and this is a great house that witnessed all stages of life, and in the house there is harmony and warmth there is no other place, and each room from its own story and a beautiful family secret.And the wonderful feelings begin to appear as soon as you enter the door as if this door is the door of heaven and peace, and once the foot falls on the doorstep of the house, until the roses bloom in the soul, and even the pieces of furniture in the house share wonderful feelings that he leaves to their owners, because they are part of it, and they complete every corner of it. The garden of the house keeps its flowers and its most beautiful trees ever, and its doors, windows and walls preserve dreams and memories, in every area of the house where there are many stories dear to heart.The house not only has such meaning for humans, but even animals and birds are the property of their homes and nests and protect their souls only within their borders, because they are synonymous with safety and comfort.Without that creature, he feels like an outcast and has nowhere to hide, so what an expatriate person longs for most is his house with all his details, and the first thing one thinks about owning him when owning money is to buy a house.As long as people describe the house with the most beautiful and wonderful descriptions, they consider it the link between stability and homelessness.

Summarized by © lakhasly.com