

This type of production involves the physical and/or chemical processing of substances and materials in order to transform them into new products. Products of manufacturing industries can be ready-to-use or semi-finished products for further processing.