

In fact, firms may conduct environmental analysis informally or through classifying tools which require significant resources. The operationalization of this process differs from one firm to another.