In fact, firms may conduct environmental analysis informally or through classifying tools which require significant resourcesThe operationalization of this process differs from one firm to another.