

Some people argue that counterfeiting benefits consumers by giving them access to lower-price goods. Fourthly, pirating objects is by essence theft, especially when the producer of a fake item affixes the label of a well-known trade mark on it. Some countries are notorious for their practice of counterfeit objects. There are several cases of substitute edibles which have caused dangerous diseases to people and which have resulted in long-lasting law suits.