

Definition of an International Treaty: • "Anquian Kock Dine": "An agreement between two or more subjects of international law to create legal effects governed by international law." • "Rosseau": "An agreement between subjects of international law aimed at creating certain legal effects." • "Mohamed Hafiz Ghanem": "An agreement involving states or other subjects of international law with the capacity to conclude treaties, which includes the creation of rights and obligations for the parties, and must address issues regulated by international law."