

According to collision theory, not all collisions between reacting particles result in a product.