

The financial department seeks to support the production, and marketing of goods or services that are provided through the company or the institution to which it is affiliated, and the financial department is interested in monitoring the movement of funds, knowing the amounts issued and received, and calculating the profit and loss ratios resulting from all activities and operations that are It is worked on, and the more financial decisions that are taken contribute to reaching correct results, the more that indicates the success of the financial management with the task you undertake.