

St. Jerome, the most famous of all translators, cites the authority of Cicero's approach to justify his own Latin revision and translation of the Christian bible, commissioned by Damasus, the Roman Bishop.