

Money drain, going to work can be expensive. Remote work saves a lot of time and effort, it means more disposable income available for other things, which is always a good thing. Remote work provides employees with freedom and flexibility in scheduling work, and this increases productivity. Frequent absence due to lack of balance between work and life and adaptation. Work pressure.