

around a turn, you feel pushed against the outside of the car. Inertia is the force that presses your body to the outside of the loop as the train spins around. This force is centripetal force and helps keep you in your seat.