“The system should allow users to add and manage products, suppliers, and sales. It should also track stock quantity and show sales information clearly. This helps users manage their business in a better and faster way.”

Summarized by © lakhasly.com