

The story explores the difference between appearance and reality. This divide is artificial since Vera created it. She presents realities in misleading ways, taking advantage of Frampton's ignorance to tell falsities. She constructed the story of Mrs. Sappleton's deceased husband by drawing on real elements. Vera's falsities depend on the absence of the people she is lying about.