

The goal of development is to expand people's capabilities to lead the lives of their choice. Income is one of the factors that determine these capabilities and outcomes, but it is not the only factor.