

In a documentary entitled "The Real Cost", including the death of American cotton farms from a brain tumor, serious birth defects in the children of Indian cotton farmers. Cotton cultivation requires high levels of water and pesticides to prevent crop failure, which may be a problem in developing countries and at risk of drought