All Directors should understand their legal responsibilities when it comes to health and safety.Their roles should be supported by formal individual terms of reference.Construction Planning Depending on the size, scale and nature of the business and the potential hazards and risks arising, it may be prudent to nominate a Director to oversee and co-ordinate the safety and health governance process.Remember that the establishment of such a role does not dilute other Directors' safety and health responsibilities.

Summarized by © lakhasly.com