

Cultural communication is the practice and study of how different cultures communicate within their community by verbal and nonverbal means. The five dimensions are power distance, uncertainty avoidance, individualism versus collectivism, masculinity versus femininity, and Chronemics. Studies done on cultural communication are utilized in ways to improve communication between international exchanges, businesses, employees, and corporations. Cultural communication can also be referred to as intercultural communication and cross-cultural communication.