

To avoid isolation, people tend to refrain from publicly stating their views on controversial matters.